Nov. 21, 1922,

My dear Commersford:

Yours of the 16th was read with pleasurable interest. Hope a new sort of award of the Edison Medal may be made, for at least once to try it out.

My "piece" will appear in the coming issue of the B. E. Review, which will be shortly.

But I have not yet seen your "Forty Years". Do you suppose it will, in time, be sent to the Old Boys, or should I ask Lieb to send me a copy?

I don't remember E. W. Hammer's "Edison's Etheric Force" article.

Central Bridge, where you say Geo. Westinghouse was born, is about 20-22 miles, N. by S., from Schenectady on the D. & H. railway to Cooperstown, and about  $3\frac{1}{4}$  mile beyond Schoharie creek, <sup>and</sup> next station beyond Schoharie Junction, in a beautiful hill country.

Have a happy Thanksgiving Day, with a big log fire on the family hearth, but treat your stomach with decent respect. Sincerely,

Chas. L. Clarke
